To Whom It May Concern:

Randi Rubenstein, MSPH, did a 3-day presentation on Education for Successful Parenting to my Teen Awareness class at La Vista High School. La Vista High School is a continuation high school for students who get behind in credits. Our students are considered to be an at-risk population. Randi's program was timely and effective. Students looked at their dreams and goals and learned about the reality of parenthood. Also, students learned about appropriate ways to raise children.

Many of our students become teen parents. I think this is one more learning experience to help our students delay parenthood until they are mature enough and stable enough to handle the responsibilities. The students in my class participated with interest and walked away with a more realistic look at what one needs for success in life and success in parenting. I hope that this E.S.P. program will be available to future classes. These lessons about life and parenthood are needed for our at-risk teen students.

Thanks again to Randi's excellent presentation and superb materials on Education for Successful Parenting.

Sincerely,

Patricia M. Day
